Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Published Every Weekday Afternoon.

Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1904.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,225

It was a good shot that Cannon made in Burlington yesterday.

H. G. Davis' health is the "best known in years" in spite of the fact he has lived twelve years beyond the allotted time.

Candidate Parker's speech of acceptance is long as Candidate Roosevelt's was short. We are banking on the short one this time.

High "society" at Newport has been shaken to its foundations through the robbery of $200,000 worth of jewels. Pity that the foundation couldn't have been touched.

The Rutland News' editorial about the "secrecy of lawyers" in Vermont seems to be misunderstood by the St. Albans Messenger which goes on to say that St. Albans has 29 lawyers. Later on the Messenger admits that some of them are a poor lot, which is just the point that the News was driving at when it said "secrecy of lawyers." There are lawyers and lawyers.

"I most heartily sympathize with every proper effort being made for the suppression of ill use of intoxicating liquors, but think that I can accomplish more good by voting with the Republican party than by withdrawing my support at this time" says a Lamotte county man who was named by the prohibition county convention for side judge. Judge Watts of Stowe is not alone in his convictions.

Bishop Potter, who is sponsor for the so-called model saloon in New York city, is receiving a good many hard knocks from other clergymen throughout the country, not the least of which is from the lips of the Rev. Dr. McCrory of Pittsburg who calls Bishop Potter a "liar" when he states that the model saloon will aid temperance. Whether or not the Rev. Dr. McCrory is right in his hypothesis, his influence would have carried vastly more weight had he curbed his temper and speech to match the dignity of his profession.

Autoists need to take care. A man writes to the New York Tribune maintaining that a person is justified in using a pistol to stop an automobile by shooting, or shooting at the auto driver, "provided he is endangered by the machine. The writer likens the auto to a mad dog and says that because a person is justified in shooting the dog he is equally justified in using his pistol in the direction of the automobile. One can scarcely see the force of the correspondent's argument; but it would be just as well for autoists to dodge. The fiend may shoot.

V. A. Bullard of Burlington, delegate to the recent Democratic convention at St. Louis, will have to vote the Republican ticket this fall or go back on his word. If he had limited his challenge to ten Republicans to repeat President Lincoln's Gettysburg address he might have had the laugh on his side; for, while the first few lines of that memorable address are familiar to a large number of people, there are really few who can repeat it verbatim, whether Democrats or Republicans. Still for any way we can see out of it, Mr. Bullard will have to be a Republican this fall.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

There is not much in a name after all. Swallow and Carroll are not standing on a "drink and sing" platform.—Washington Post.

The "rabble" is a new factor in politics—at least the name is a new one for him. He is in a political convention what a camp follower is to an army.—Kansas City World.

This is the year when 15,000,000 American voters will go to the polls and indicate their preference between the rough rider and the rough swimmer.—Kansas City Star.

THE DARK CONTINENT.

African savages take kindly to American patent medicines.

Natives of Uganda, Africa, use mercuric oil for anointing their shiny black bodies.

When a Uganda native buys an American phonograph and sets it up in his hut he becomes a society leader.

Amadeus of Spain abdicated in 1873, disgusted with the tedious ceremonial of the Spanish court. He returned to Italy and was glad to resume his honorary and nominal duties as an officer of the Italian service.

Come to our sale before you sail for St. Louis and you'll save enough to pay for any sights on the Pike. If you're going to take your vacation nearer home, perhaps you will be just as interested to get a $14.00 Suit for $9.50.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

The Rev. L. N. Moody of Chelsea has been compelled to give up all work for the present, owing to a serious nervous trouble.

H. L. Dexter of Glover was fatally injured Sunday morning by being kicked by a colt in the pit of the stomach. He died Sunday night from the effects of the injuries.

Mason S. Stone, a former state superintendent of education and later engaged in educational work in the Philippines, has been elected superintendent of schools in Norwood, Mass.

Mrs. Betsey C. Stebbins of Westfield was 92 years old August 3. She was the recipient of calls, congratulations and flowers. Mrs. Stebbins is remarkably vigorous for one of her years.

Albert Williams of Ionia, Mich., claims to be the oldest living Republican in the United States. He was present at the meeting in Jackson, Mich., when the party was organized. Mr. Williams was born in Halifax, Feb. 5, 1817, and is today strong and vigorous and as firmly devoted to the principles of the "under the oaks" platform as he was fifty years ago.

The case of Aurelia S. Cowdrey of Jamaica against the Central Vermont railroad lessees of the Brattleboro and Whitehall division, to recover damages on account of being put off the train about a year ago after having been carried by the Jamaica station some distance and left there for the night, was settled Tuesday. The railroad paid $700 to the aged woman.

Nearly 600 officers and men of the garrison at the Fort Ethan Allen left the post yesterday for the long march to Manassas, Va. The cavalrymen carried ten rounds of carbine and five of revolver ball cartridges, the artillerymen five of the latter, for guard service. The men will be allowed to leave the camps, upon completion of all work after arriving in camp. A percent of those on the march are recruits of recent date and the march will be a revelation to them. It is expected that the trip will be made in about 17 days.

Homer Hill, the 12-year-old step-son of John Campbell, who lives on the Waterford road, two and one-half miles from St. Johnsbury, had an escapade with a bear Monday, in which he, like David of old, won out by the use of stones and good marksmanship. He saw what he thought was a big black dog but when the animal started toward him he realized his mistake. Grabbing a rock, he hurled it with all his strength. The rock struck brim in the head and the animal dropped. The boy ran home and notified his people. Men, boys and dogs gathered, but meanwhile the bear had returned to the woods. The dogs took the scent readily but the heavy shower of Monday coming up just then spoiled it, and the party was obliged to give up the hunt.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The moon shines blantly through the night. It gives the road a joyous thrill To think of getting all that light With no one sending in a bill.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Worst Thing About It.

"How do you like married life?" asked her dearest friend. "Well," she replied, a little ruefully, "after one is married one can't be engaged any more, you know."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Doctor's Orders.

Have you let your whiskers grow? Shave 'em off! They are full of germs, you know. Shave 'em off! Chase the microbes out of where they are nesting in the hair. Give your face a little air. Shave 'em off! —Chicago Record-Herald.

Positively Brutal.

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said. "Well," he replied, "poverty is no disgrace, but it's awfully inconvenient at times."—Town and Country.

In a Japanese Garden.

In a garden wee and cool, Stunted pine and fairy pool, Tinkling, tinkling now and then On her carven sunbeam, Sighing for the little man Gone to fight for dear Japan, Sits the girl, Oyucha San.

Ah, but you were proud of heart When you saw his troops depart! Riding like a foreign lord, Boots and cap and dangling sword, Demigod and hero man, Who would make a new Japan—Thus he seemed, Oyucha San.

"Good success!" I heard you pray On the Nippon grows "civilized!" Should the gods heed, can you guess What may come with "good success?" How his sword may change the plan Of the silken old Japan, Almond eyed Oyucha San?

Hear the crickets' reedy tune! See the lantern of the moon Gilt the lacquer on the deep Where the gray carp lies asleep! Why should armies scheme and plan, Dun ambition for Japan, Which is best, Oyucha San?

How the gods may be surprised When Nippon grows "civilized!" When the spade of commerce threads Railroads through your iris bed! Vanish, O Oyucha San! Vanish beauty from Japan—Vanish you, Oyucha San!

Progress calls you, so, alas, Yoddo's blossom time must pass! Soon you'll hear the grinding mill Shriek and fume on Nara's hill. Or an ugly, changed Japan—And for this your little man Goes to war, Oyucha San. —Wallace Irwin in New York Globe.

Why, Certainly.

"What would you say if I kissed you?" "There's a better way to find out than asking me."—New York Evening Journal.
